

Immunology Undergraduate Prizes 2019

Form A

This form should be completed in line with the guidelines for undergraduate prizes

Name of applicant BSI membership number	Position (please indicate whether Programme Director or Chair of Board of Examiners, and for which degree programme or programmes)
Address	Email address Telephone Number
Co-applicant (required only when the main applicant is not a BSI member) BSI membership number	Address (including e-mail and telephone number)
Role of co-applicant in relation to the degree programme(s) detailed above:
Brief description of degree programme(s) to which the award would be linked. Please indicate: (i) the approximate percentage of the curriculum at each stage that is Immunology and (ii) whether intercalating medical students participate in the programmes to which the award would be linked.
Please provide a brief outline of any other prizes that are regularly awarded within your School or Department. (e.g. Society for General Microbiology Undergraduate Prize)

Approximately how many students are registered this academic year on the degree programmes to which the award would be linked?

What is the percentage, if any, of intercalating medical students on each?

Briefly explain the criteria on which you propose to select the prize winner. If you propose to nominate a penultimate year student, please explain how your criteria would encourage the student to pursue immunology in their final year; if you propose to nominate a final year student, please explain how your criteria would encourage the student to pursue postgraduate study or a career in immunology. Please remember: this award is intended both to recognise excellence in undergraduate study and to encourage further study or a career in immunology, not simply be awarded as a class prize for immunology.

Signature of applicant date

Signature of co-applicant date
(where applicable)

Completed applications should be emailed to s.green@immunology.org

To arrive by 29 April 2019